

Carnival Corporation Statement:
Safety, Environment, Compliance are Top Priorities

Excellence in safety, environmental protection and compliance are top priorities for Carnival Corporation and our nine global cruise line brands. Our guests depend on us to take them safely to places with clean air and water and to see beautiful environments and destinations, so it is critically important to us to do our part to protect and preserve the environment.

The measure of a great company is one that learns from mistakes. We have acknowledged our past mistakes – and now our focus is on understanding the root causes and continuing to take concrete steps to avoid issues in the future, with a determination to build a world-class, enduring culture of compliance, one that involves all of our 150,000 employees and one that all of us can be proud of.

It is a continuous improvement process, and a top company priority. However, we recognize that there are skeptics and that our actions speak louder than words. To that end, we have enhanced our environmental compliance framework and significantly increased the resources devoted to our compliance function. We are executing on our priorities with tangible actions and improvements. Over the last three years, we have spent almost a billion dollars on environmental initiatives, implemented new and more effective procedures, and invested in hundreds of thousands of hours of training for our crew members. Our focus is not only to meet our compliance targets but to also constantly improve every day in environmental excellence and stewardship.

Recently, we have strengthened our commitment to compliance and the environment with a series of actions, including a dramatic reduction of single-use plastics, cleaner and more efficient energy systems, lessening our food waste, using water more judiciously and much more as part of our ongoing effort for continuous improvement. In August, Pete Anderson, a former federal prosecutor with over 20 years of experience in corporate compliance, was named to the newly created position of chief ethics and compliance officer. Under his leadership, the company is building a comprehensive ethics and compliance program to drive a world-class, enduring culture of compliance, learning and integrity inside the corporation and our cruise lines.

Our desire as travelers to experience as much of the world as we can must be balanced in a way that is sustainable to the natural environment that we need to protect as well as the communities we treasure. The more we learn, the more we must be willing to share responsibility as we move surely and consistently in the direction of zero-impact. Our goal is to meet and/or exceed all legal and statutory requirements, promote the highest ethical principles, and consistently achieve environmental excellence and operational compliance.
